

Note for IPS students – 27 March 2020

Given that it is possible to interact with the class at distance, I want to try to implement the exam mode I had originally indicated for this course, namely essay + presentations.

Regarding essays, I invite you to form groups of 2-3 students and develop an essay (a short paper) on some issue related to the course: it can be a deepening of some aspects touched upon in the classes, or the development of some cases that further illustrate some aspects of the course. Indications on essays have been sent by email and are on the site of the course.

Presentations will take place in May, either at the Department or via digital platforms (depending on how the coronavirus emergency evolves).
